Highwaymen Terrified Citizens.

"I remember when highwaymen used to rob men every night and frighten citizens off the streets. You don't hear much of that now. A man is held up occasionally, but that will continue as long as there is darkness. We cannot have a policeman on every street corner and in every alley. If you will notice, you will find the victims of robberies are mostly drunken men.

"One reason why robberies and burglaries are on the decrease is because thieves find it harder to dispose of their plunder. There is not a good 'fence' house in the city where a burglar can dispose of his booty. In the last three years a dozen persons have been sent to the Penitentary for receiving stolen property and 'fences' have since become quite unpopular.

"At the beginning of this summer I put a new plan into practice. I requested every person who was going to close his house for the summer to report it to me, so I could have the houses especially watched. The plan has been quite successful. I remember when thieves used to drive up in a moving van to a house which was closed for the summer and literally clean it out. We have not had such a case this summer.

murders Not So Numerous.

"There have not been very many murders either. These are more often matters of circumstance, and would happen in this cases out of ten, despite the greatest police surveillance. And yet there have been few killings this year. Murder often results from suggestion. A shocking tragedy is generally followed by several other killings which grow out of similar circumstances.

"Crime has its seasons. In the winter, when it is cold and men must have warm clothes and comfortable places to sleep, we find more footpads and burgiars—they are after money to buy these necessities, which they are unwilling to work for. When it is warm a man can sleep out in the open without protection and can more comfortably beg from door to door. In summer the passions ren riot and we have more assunts and crimes of that character. Men are thrown together more, they are more irritable and more prone to quarrel. In such cases our work begins after the commission of the crime—it is our work to arrest the offender and procure the necessary evidence. We can break up gaugs of thieves and arrest suspicious characters, but we cannot tell who is going to fight." Jacksonville, Fla., and Atlanta, Ga., papers

LAWSON TO BUILD MINIATURE VENICE.

Several reasons are advanced by those whose duty it is to maintain the public Buys Two Islands Off Stonington. peace. Chief among them is the efficient work of the police, and the prosecuting of-Maine, and Has Option on Twelve More.

"I do not recall a time since I have been on the force-and I have been in the department for twenty-six years—when there was so little on the criminal calender as there is to-day. There is almost nothing going on. We have not had a really good-sized burglary this year. Of course, we receive reports every day of petty jobs—sneak theyer stealing an alarm clock or a coll of old hose, lead pipe thieves cutting out the lead from some vacant building, but then these are not very numerous, and they don't amount to much. It is rarely that you hear nowadays of a big burglary.

"There are no organized bands of theyes operating over the city as used to be the case. Almost all of them have been broken up and the leaders are in the Penitentiary. New ones are not organized because the courts deal out such good sentences that the lawbreakers are terrified lest they fall into the hands of the prosecuting authorities. Justice is more uniform and convictions are too many in St. Louis for the experienced thief. A young one breaks loose once in awhile, but before he goes far he is nabbed and his career ends in prison. Boston, Mass., Aug. 31.-Thomas W. Lawson is going to build a miniature Venice or the coast of Maine. He has bought and paid for two islands off Stonington, and has an option on twelve others, which he will pay for when the titles are proved to his satisfaction.

These islands are situated in Isle Au Hauet Bay, and are about fifteen miles from the mainland. The islands are not bits of rock and earth, for one of them, Saddieback, the largest of the group, contains over forty acres. The islands are close to gether, and many of them can be connected by bridge. They are all covered with a heavy growth of spruce and fir hulsam. It is said that Mr. Lawson will build a magnificent castle on Saddleback and clear the island for golf links and tennis courts. Those who know him best say he intends to put the matter into the hands of a famous landscape artist, who will furnish plans which will transform the Lawson group of islands into a "Venice in America."

The smaller islands will be cleared of everything unsightly and everything which rhows the rugged beauty of the group will be left untouched. The Lawson Islands are grouped around Saddleback, and every one is in easy range. Their formation is such that it makes a perfect harber for an even larger vesset than Mr. Lawson's stearn Hauet Bay, and are about fifteen miles is in easy range. Their formation is such that it makes a perfect harber for an even larger vessel than Mr. Lawson's steam yacht, the Decamer.

The estimated cost of the islands is $20,000. The total cost of the "Venice in America," it is said, will be $1,000,000.
